- 16.3 Claims for damage or reimbursement of expenses against the Principal (hereinafter: "damage claims"), irrespective of legal ground, in particular for breach of duty, either contractual or tortious, shall be excluded. This shall not apply where liability cannot be excluded, e.g. liability under the Product Liability Act (Produkthaftungsgesetz), in case of deliberate acts, gross negligence, injury to life, body or health or in case of breach of essential contractual duties. Damage claims arising from breach of essential contract duty shall, however, be restricted to damage which is typical and foreseeable provided that the breach is not deliberate or the result of gross negligence. The restriction shall not apply with respect to liability for injury to life, body or health. The above rules shall not involve a reversal of the burden of proof to the detriment of the Client. Where a damage claim arises to the Client under this provision, this shall be subject to a limitation period of two years except in the case that statute provides a different mandatory limitation period. In the absence of any mandatory legal provision to the contrary, the limitation period shall begin with the end of the calendar year in which the event giving rise to the damage claim takes place. Claims of the Client against the Principal or Client rights other or more extensive than those expressly set down in these GPC, irrespective of their legal grounds, shall be excluded.

The penalty shall be payable plus statutory VAT. The right of the Principal to assert further claims for damage incurred over and above that covered by the contractual penalty sum shall be unaffected. The contractual penalty payment shall, however, be taken into account in calculating the value of such claims. The Principal shall be entitled to offset any contractual penalty sum owed to it against the next payment instalment due.

17. Insurance

- 17.1 The Client must take out liability insurance in accordance with Point 16.4 of these GPC under terms which are customary for the sector (minimum coverage of EUR 1 million per loss event) and shall maintain this for the duration of contract, including guarantee and limitation periods for defect claims, and shall furnish evidence of the existence of such insurance when requested by the Principal.

17.2 The Client shall ensure that all payments which the Principal may demand under the terms of the insurance policy in connection with the Client's liability are paid directly to the Principal. To this end, the Principal may, at its discretion, demand the following from the Client :

- that the Principal be included as beneficiary on conclusion of the insurance policy or
- That all insurance claims are to be assigned to the Principal.

In this case, the Client shall issue the Principal with an irrevocable power of attorney so that it may demand payment on the insurance claim from the insurance companies directly.

17.3 Any excess agreed by the Client in the insurance policy shall be paid by the Client.

17.4 The conclusion of a policy of insurance by the Client shall neither limit its liability nor shall it found an instance of joint and several liability towards the Principal.

The Client shall furnish the Principal with all documentation necessary for continuation of performance. Should, in such a case, the Client have a disputed claim for outstanding remuneration and where, for this reason, the Client has asserted a right of retention in close temporal connection with the termination, the Principal may avert the exercise of any such right of retention by provision of a collateral of its choice, the value of which it may determine pursuant to § 315 of the BGB.

In case of termination, the Principal shall be entitled to cease all payments with immediate effect

In derogation from the statutory consequences of rescission, the following shall apply:

18.2.1 Where the contract is rescinded on grounds for which the Client is responsible, the Principal shall remunerate the Client for services rendered in accordance with contract and which are of use to the Principal up to the date of service of notice of termination. Remuneration shall be on the basis of agreed prices for part performance. The right to assert claims for damages by the Principal shall remain unaffected.

The Client shall be responsible for the following grounds of termination:

- The Principal expressly submits a written request for the Client to perform and sets a suitable grace period for performance and the Client fails to discharge its duty within the grace period.
- The Client materially contravenes official provisions or guidelines on pain of having to pay fines or penalty charges in connection with the making of deliveries or rendering of services.

- It can be proved that the Client or an agent acting at its behest attempted to poach the Principal's staff.
- The Client infringes Point 12 of these GPC.

- The Client continues to breach the duties set down in Point 19 of these GPC even after issue of warning notice.

18.2.2 Should the Principal terminate the contract on grounds for which the Client is not responsible, the Client shall be entitled to demand the agreed remuneration; it must, however, permit a deduction equivalent to the amount saved as a result of the termination of contract or to the amount that it earns or maliciously omits to earn by otherwise applying its labour.

18.2.3 The Principal shall be entitled to terminate the contract where the Client ceases payments to its creditors or where an application for insolvency or for a comparable statutory procedure has been properly submitted or such a procedure has been opened or rejected for lack of assets. The Principal shall remunerate the Client for services rendered on a pro rata basis. The Principal shall be entitled to demand damages from the Client for non-performance of remaining duties.

18.3 The Principal shall at all times be entitled to rescind the order for delivery (§ 433 of the BGB) up to the point of handover where, as a result of decisions taken by state authorities, the Principal has no further interest in the performance of duties owed by the Client. The Principal shall also be able to rescind the contract where an application for insolvency or for a comparable statutory procedure concerning the Client's assets has been properly submitted or such a procedure has been opened or rejected for lack of assets. In case of rescission by the Principal on grounds indicated in this Point, the provisions set down above in Points 18.2.1 to 18.2.3 shall apply mutatis mutandis with respect to the Client's claim for remuneration. The Principal shall acquire title to partial deliveries of goods for which remuneration is paid.

19.3 At the request of the Principal, the Client shall immediately provide a report, free of charge, on compliance with these duties within its organisation and shall further provide the Principal with all (additional) information requested in this regard. Where the contract runs over several years, the Principal shall be entitled to demand that the Client regularly updates this information.

- 20.2 The Client shall provide proof of this to the Principal at the beginning of each contractual relationship and from then on at regular yearly intervals without specific request to do so.
- 20.3 Insofar as the Client for its part uses subcontractors, it shall ensure that these also comply with minimum wage legislation and shall hold the Principal harmless in respect of any liability for breach in this regard. All other conditions for the use of subcontractors shall remain unaffected.
- 20.4 Insofar as the Client or its subcontractors infringe the provisions of minimum wage legislation, the Principal shall be entitled to issue termination without notice without prior warning.

Reporting or disclosure of business relationships with the Principal in publications or for the purpose of advertising shall only be permitted with express and prior written approval from the Principal.

22. Shipment Abroad

The Client shall be responsible for ensuring that, in those cases where its own documents or property or the Principal's documents or property are shipped abroad, an assessment of whether authorisation is required is made and – where necessary – all necessary licences are procured and all applicable legal requirements are fulfilled.
